

Miracle of St. Demetrios is a translation from a 9th century text of Anastasius the Librarian

In English / Christianity / In English / Άγ. Δημήτριος Μυροβλήτης / Άγιοι - Πατέρες - Γέροντες / Γέρ. Ιωσήφ Βατοπαιδινός / Θαύματα και θαυμαστά γεγονότα

You all know the famine which occurred a short while ago not only in this city of Thessalonica, but almost everywhere else also, to such an extent that scarcity of not only corn but of other things even seized the queen of cities herself also. Therefore, since the city was being crushed by the affliction of such a great famine, that holy martyr Demetrius, at the instruction of God, sent to them ships from many different regions filled with various produce, fresh and dry, and with every goodness of human food, so that their desperation for these necessities was immediately brought to an end, just as you have already heard. There was a certain man who had been posted by his lord on the island of Chios in order to buy the corn which the ships were bringing there. \(περισσότερα...\)