30 Δεκεμβρίου 2010

World Blind To Christianity’s Evaporating Roots In Holy Land

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

By Paul Stanway,

One of the staples of television news over the Christmas holiday is coverage of celebrations in the Holy Land, providing a familiar and comforting nod to the ancient roots of Western civilization.

Even in our increasingly secular society, images of Christians worshipping in Nazareth and Bethlehem provide welcome confirmation that we have a long and substantial history — even if we’re fuzzy on the details. It all looks so traditional and Christmassy.

Read more…

(περισσότερα…)