To die a perfect death (Elder Thaddeus of Vitovnica)

ες / Ρήματα ζωής

Unless you sacrifice your self for the sake of the slightest virtue or shed blood in order to receive the Spirit, you'll never achieve virtue. This is how God arranged things, with his providential power: that we should gain eternal life through our voluntary death.

Unless you die voluntarily, you'll never achieve eternal life and you'll become moribund.

Those who don't die a perfect death, by cutting off their own will, won't enter the Kingdom of Heaven.
