A mere spider's web (John of Kronstadt)

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

For God, the world's nothing more than an insignificant spider's web. Equally insignificant is our body. Yet every particle of matter is testament to wisdom and is preserved with wisdom, with the eternal laws of wisdom. All of us owe our very existence to divine wisdom. My death and decomposition show what an insignificant spider's web I am.
