We live on this (Saint Justin Popovich)

For us Christians, who are enlightened and illuminated in Christ, everything in this world is of value and has meaning, insofar as it's a means and path to eternity. Because we see what isn't apparent and gaze upon the invisible. We arrange the whole of our life in time on the basis of what's eternal; what's human on the basis of the God/Human. As long as there's something eternal within the bounds of time, we survive on this. But when it's absent we seek it beyond time, in the kingdom of the unending and the invisible. We gaze upon everything through the prism of eternity, that is, through the prism of Christ, since He is the eternal God and Lord.
