Never! I will never forgive him!

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English

Two monks used to live at the Lavra of the Kievo Caves, Tito and deacon Evagrios. They were friends and of the same mind and spirit. The love they had for each other was exemplary. All the others in the brotherhood were seeing them as an model to them and hugely admired them.

However, the one who is the enemy of all goodness, the devil, who is used to saw weeds among the wheat and transforms the wheat into weed when men snooze (and do not watch out carefully to preserve their spirituality and are not afraid in case the devil steals their love because they think it is their personal achievement and their own right), transformed this love into loathing. Such was the repugnance that Tito and Evagrios felt for each other that they could not even see eye to eye.
