

On Lukewarm Christianity- By: Fr. Alexander Men

Ξένες γλώσσες / In English / Ορθόδοξη πίστη

Fr. Alexander Men

Often what passes for Orthodoxy or another Christian confession is simply natural religiosity which, in its own right, is a kind of opium of the people. It functions as a sort of spiritual anesthetic, it helps a person adjust to his surrounding world, over which one can hang the slogan: 'Blessed is the one who believes that it is cozy in the world.' This is all wrong! ...Your God is a consuming fire and not a warm hearth, and he is calling you to a place where all sorts of cold winds are blowing, so that what you imagine does not exist. You adapted and developed a completely different teaching to suit your own human needs. You transformed Christianity into a mediocre, popular religion. ...

Read more...

\(περισσότερα...\)